

BIG CROWDS IN LOS ANGELES HEAR JOHNSON

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3.—Addressing an audience of several hundred persons here today at a luncheon tendered him by the Los Angeles League for the Preservation of American Independence, United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson attacked the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant and declared that the United States now stands at the cross roads of its destiny. Senator Johnson is to make another address tonight.

The people must decide, he said, whether the United States shall enter into a partnership with "melodious European and Asiatic diplomacy," or pursue the straight path of pure Americanism.

Senator Johnson was given a demonstrative reception and his address was interrupted many times when his utterances brought the big crowd to its feet cheering and waving handkerchiefs. The senator spoke in the ball room of a hotel where two weeks ago President Wilson defended the treaty and the league of nations and urged its early ratification.

At the senator's table were gathered many of his friends who were active in the early days of the Progressive party, which swept Hiram W. Johnson into office as governor of California.

Principles Discarded.

"We saw the high principles of President Wilson discarded," said Senator Johnson, "we saw altruism gone and idealism buried and we saw open covenants openly arrived at accomplished behind barred doors. We looked to see the removal of economic barriers; we looked to see national armaments reduced, but we never heard the semblance of an accomplishment. We saw arbitrary power have its will in the adjustment of world affairs and we saw a defensive and offensive alliance brought about instead of a desired understanding for world peace."

Senator Johnson declared that the treaty represents the understanding of the United States co-belligerents before this country entered the war. Discussing the Shantung provisions of the treaty, Senator Johnson asserted that America's acceptance of the transfer of Chinese sovereignty of the Shantung peninsula to Japan was a shameful blot on America's honor.

China Despoiled.

The United States government, the senator continued, invited China to participate in the world war on a promise that China would be taken care of at the peace table. She was taken care of to the extent that the United States became a party to her despoilment, Senator Johnson asserted. The league of nations was denounced by the senator as tantamount to conferring on foreign powers the exercise of America's participation in foreign affairs. Eight men, sitting in Geneva, all foreigners, he said, could and would determine the course of the United States in world quarrels in which this country would be dragged to assist in matters in which she could have no concern.

Senator Johnson said the threat that the United States would be isolated if the senate refused to ratify the peace treaty and the covenant was ridiculous. So long as the Atlantic and Pacific oceans remain, said Senator Johnson, the United States could not in any sense remain isolated from any part of the world. And President Wilson cannot dry up those oceans, he said.

Police Searching For Pinal Miner

Ed Barton of the police department was in receipt of a letter yesterday from Henry D. Hall, sheriff of Pinal county, requesting the address of Jim Quinn, a miner, who is thought to be working in the Warren district. If Quinn is here, he is asked to communicate with Barton at the city hall.

JEWS, THE WORLD OVER, WILL OBSERVE YOUR KIPPUR TODAY

Today is the tenth day of the month of Tishri, the seventh month of the Jewish religious year and the first month of the civil year and is the holy day of Yom ha-Kipurim, or Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement. Beginning at sundown yesterday and continuing until sundown this evening, the Jews of the world devote themselves to penance and mortification. Every form of pleasure is forbidden, as is likewise eating, drinking or any other thing of comfort.

The established rule is to spend the whole of the night and day in prayer. During the day the Torah is read twice; in the morning after Shabbat and in the afternoon, before Minchah. After the Nallah, or closing service, the ram's horn trumpet is heard once as a token of spiritual as well as physical freedom, while the last wish of the day is for the restoration of Jerusalem.

The year begins with Rosh ha-Shanah and then come 10 days of meditation, when the Day of Atonement is commemorated. The books of life and death, according to the old ritual, are opened on Rosh ha-Shanah and closed on Yom ha-Kipurim. The righteous are inscribed for life at the very opening of the books; the wicked are sentenced to death and the indifferent are given time to repent before the books are closed.

The prayers and sacrifices begin in the evening of the ninth day, with the Kol Needrah, a beautiful but melancholy portion of the Hebrew ritual. Today there will be four services. The morning prayer is called the Saehris; then comes the Musaf, or additional service; the third, or afternoon service is named Mincha, and the closing service is the Nallah.

The outstanding features of all the services are the prayers for forgiveness. According to the Law these prayers include not only supplication to God for offenses committed against Him, but in as great a measure prayers for forgiveness for the sins committed by man against man. Therefore, it is a strict rule that he who has injured his neighbor during the year must seek forgiveness from him as well as from God.

With regard to the Day of Atonement and its significance, a Jewish writer says:

"There is a moral death and there is a physical death. The deeds of the righteous live forever. They become the inspiration of succeeding generations. The misdeeds of the wicked bring about death and destruction wherever encountered. Life becomes purposeless to those who do not find aught but temporariness upon the path of their lives. Life is full of hope and strength, or purpose and interest, to those who believe in the existence of eternity."

"To that end a real spiritual accounting must take place periodically within the heart of everyone capable of distinguishing right from wrong. Self-satisfaction leads to indifference—to a feeling of security. Ethical philosophers may scorn the idea of resorting to these methods of affliction of soul in order to obtain a spiritual victory over self. Pagans may have gone to extremes in punishing themselves to please their deities. Judaism warned against these practices, but aimed at a middle course which would be as acceptable to reason as to the law of God."

The next holy day of the Jews will be Wednesday, the 15th day of Tishri, when Sukkah, or the Feast of Tabernacles will be celebrated. This day commemorates the time when the Jews left Egypt and spent 40 years in the wilderness. It is sometimes called the Hag ha-Asph, or the day of the gathering in of the crops.

the state Democratic central committee has nothing whatever to do with bringing Senator Reed to Arizona.

"I understand the League for the Preservation of American Independence will receive the senator upon his arrival in Phoenix and entertain him during his stay here."

"It may not be amiss at this time to remind the public that the great war was fought for the purpose of saving the world from autocratic rule and we should uphold the hands of President Wilson in his earnest endeavor to carry out the very things for which the war was waged."

PROGRESSING SENTIMENT.

New York Herald.

The plain truth, understood by all save those who are so blind that they will not see, is that as the expounding has proceeded from the vision of "a" league of nations to the actuality of "this" League of Nations there has been an increase by leaps and bounds of the number of Americans who do not believe that their country should enter into any league of nations. The growth of that feeling, found in all parts of the country, has thrown a scare into the camp of the supporters of the unamended and unreserved covenant.

IMMIGRATION SOUGHT BY ARGENTINA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2.—Argentina needs and is encouraging desirable immigration from Europe, although it is using its best efforts to get rid of those whose purpose is to hinder the progress of the country, either as individuals or through "undesirable organizations," said Dr. Tomas A. Le Breton, ambassador from Argentina, yesterday.

In regard to the report that colonies of Germans are preparing to migrate to Argentina, Ambassador Le Breton made the following statement: "The national constitution in its preamble declares that it is one of its purposes to guarantee the freedom and general welfare of people from any part of the world who may wish to live on Argentine soil. Article 25 provides that 'the federal government shall encourage European immigration' and shall not restrict, limit or burden, with any tax whatsoever, the entrance into Argentine territory of any foreigners who come to the country for the purpose of cultivating land, developing the industries, or introducing and teaching arts and sciences."

Government Makes Rules.

"Pursuant to this legal precept, the government has provided rules and regulations for the application of this clause, determining what foreigners should be admitted as helpful in the development of agriculture, industry, arts and sciences, and who should be excluded because their purpose is to hinder the progress of the country or to endeavor to deviate, by means of undesirable organizations, its forward course. To this effect steps have been taken, not only of a domestic nature, but also for a convention with all the neighboring countries."

"The situation of the Argentine Republic at the present time as regards density of population is the same as that of the United States in the middle of the last century, enormous territorial area, first-class production and scarcity of population. On the first of January of this year the total population of the country we figured to be only 8,412,000, while there could live on our soil about the same number of inhabitants as now live in the United States."

Immigration Has Declined.

"The annual immigration, which reached 323,403 in 1912, has decreased on account of the war. This has made the balance between emigration and immigration adverse to us, but fortunately this balance only reached the figure of 13,138 against our population in 1917. We hope that from this year on, the balance will be in our favor and that desirable immigration will go to our country."

"The course of social events and the difficulties experienced in the wage problem all over the world force us to be cautious and to avoid causing serious disturbances in the economic situation of our workmen."

"Some people speak about the danger of absorption by, or at least the influence of immigration in large homogeneous groups. 'In my opinion there is no such danger; in the first place, because the national authorities will not tolerate an organization of this kind; and in the second place, because our laws and customs make a rapid assimilation inevitable.'"

Department Asked To Identify Bodies

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—Lieutenant General Hunter Liggett, commander of the western department of the army, telegraphed today to the adjutant general at Washington asking that the state department take steps to identify the bodies of two men found recently near Los Animas bay, Lower California, now thought to be those of Lieutenants C. H. Connelly and Frederick B. Waterhouse, missing American aviators.

A BEAST OF PREY.

New York Sun.

We do not know the chronology of Mr. Foster's career as an agitator and organizer of labor for revolutionary purposes. We do not know how long it is since he last re-examined the damnable doctrines and precepts which he disseminated from Chicago in his red pamphlet at twenty-five cents a copy. But we are prepared to agree fully with Mr. Foster that the red thing has whiskers on it. They are the same whiskers which adorn the fiery, furious countenance of Russian Bolshevism, that foreign counterpart of Mr. Foster's syndicalism, in the pictorial personification the caricaturists have made familiar to American dread and loathing. And it is to this exotic beast that Judge Gary refuses to extend the olive branch!

The American Federation of Labor urges union members to invest in savings stamps. It's a suggestion that makes for thrift and prosperity. Moreover, the man with his money tied up in government securities will not listen to Bolshevik agitators who would overturn the government.

History of Number 40

40 years ago an old doctor was putting up a medicine for diseases of the blood, that cured the worst cases of specific blood poison and time proved that the cures were permanent. After many years I secured the prescription (being a druggist, and took each ingredient separately and referred to my U. S. Dispensary and other authoritative books on medicine and found the medical properties set down as follows: "Employed in diseases of the glandular system, in blood poison, scrofula, eczema, chronic rheumatism, catarrh, in sores, ulcers, pimples, skin eruptions, mercurial and lead poisoning. Under its use nodes, tumors and scrofulous swellings that have withstood all other treatment disappear as if by magic." To commemorate my fortieth year as a druggist I named this medicine "Number 40 For the Blood." J. C. Mendenhall, Evansville, Ind.

UNION LEADERS PREPARE FOR A HARD BATTLE

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 3.—While the virtual deadlock continued today in the steel strike in the Pittsburgh district, leaders of the organized workers were making plans to finance a prolonged struggle.

The 24 international presidents of the unions involved in the strike will meet with the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at Washington Monday for the purpose of discussing plans for the paying of strike benefits. It was announced at national headquarters here. The federation is expected to levy assessments on all members to aid the benefit fund, it was stated. The individual international unions are reported to have large defense funds available for paying benefits.

The average benefit paid by some unions is $7 per week for single men and $9 for married men. H. C. Hughes, international president of the Coopers' union, said: The amount varies in the different unions. He estimated that $2,000,000 per week will be necessary to cover the benefit fund.

While union leaders continued to claim they have the steel mills in this district crippled, the company officials said that many men were returning to work and that production was nearly normal.

From different places today came word that steel companies were preparing to open all mills shut down by the strike next Monday.

DEMOCRATS DID NOT ASK REED TO TOUR STATE

PHOENIX, Oct. 3.—T. H. Drennan, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, issued a statement here today to the people of Arizona that the committee "has nothing whatever to do with bringing Senator Reed to Arizona."

Drennan said he issued the statement because of numerous inquiries relative to the visit to Arizona of Senator Reed in the next few days on a speaking tour in opposition to the league of nations. Democrats of Yuma county sent him a telegram expressing disapproval of the visit of Senator Reed.

The statement follows in part: "So many inquiries have come to this office relative to the visit of Senator Reed to this state that I deem it advisable to inform the public, especially the Democrats of the state, that
